

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I met a young man about nine years ago. I knew him a few months when he left town. He never told me about it and I never knew where he went. Recently I got a letter from him, telling me he is a farmer and asking me to answer his letter, which I did.

My folks did not like it that I wrote to him. He never asked me if I was married. Now he asks me to be his wife and live on the farm. I ask your advice, as I am a city girl and don't care to live on a farm. EDNA.

If you don't love him and don't want to live on a farm, that settles it, doesn't it? However, if you love him and think you can be happy with him, no matter where you live, and if he is a good man who can take care of a wife properly, better think it over.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been going with a young man for a year and a half. He seems to be a gentleman in every way, but is not neat enough to suit me. How can I have him understand, but not hurt his feelings?

(2) He told me he loves me and asked me if I loved him in return. I said I did, and I do love him. Am I doing right?

(3) We are not engaged, but there is an understanding between us. Is it right to allow him to kiss me?

(4) My girl friends call me an old maid because I won't flirt. Am I doing right? Is 20 years old considered an old maid?

BROWN EYES.

(1) Is he just not quite fashionable enough in his clothes, or isn't he clean? If he isn't clean, I don't blame you for wanting a change. But if he doesn't just dress to suit you, don't worry, provided he is the man you really love. Think of his good qualities.

(2) If you do love him, it was right to tell the truth.

(3) I don't like these "understandings," my dear. They give the man the privilege of an engaged person, but do not bind him at all. Better postpone the kissing until you are really engaged.

(4) What do you care? I'd rather have them call me names and know that I am keeping my self-respect, wouldn't you? Besides, there are no old maids these days. An attractive woman is marriageable no matter what her age. A girl of 20 is still very young.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If a friend calls on your husband and your husband is absent, should you invite the friend in?

(2) Do you think that face lotions are good for the face?

(3) Is orris root good for the hair?

(4) It would be polite to ask him to stay in, after you have told him your husband is not at home. However, he should refuse to come in unless he knows that your husband will be home very shortly.

(5) I do not. Cold cream and gentle massage are the only things I can conscientiously recommend.

(6) Orris root is really harmful in the long run. It is used as a dry shampoo for the hair.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a young man friend that I like very much. Whenever I am out he always escorts me home. He seemed very attentive towards me and when he had other friends with him, he always wanted me with him. Lately he seems to care less for me. How can I regain his friendship?

It may be that he is getting tired of you, and if that is the case you can't help it, my dear. Just show him that you can have a good time without him, but always be pleasant and courteous to him. You need not lose his friendship even if he does not dance constant attendance upon you. See that some other of your young man friends pay some attention to you now.

Each lady attending brought some simple gift and these were all placed in a large dishpan with strings attached to each article, the whole being covered, and a string end placed at each place at the dining room table. The ladies then drew their gifts and many delightful surprises were in store for them. A delicious lunch was served, the Christmas colors being carried out wherever possible in the course, the salads and ices being in the shape of poinsettias. The table had as its centerpiece a large mound of poinsettias with many tiny electric bulbs among the blossoms and greenery, the whole being topped with lights in the Christmas colors, making an unusual and pretty decoration. The time was passed in pleasant sociability and music and was one of the prettiest of the parties given by the club. The club will meet every two weeks as heretofore, following the holiday recess.

MILLER-FORSBERG.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized last evening, when Miss Helene Forsberg, second daughter of Rev. and Mrs. N. J. Forsberg, 4509 Ninth avenue, became the bride of Rev. Samuel Miller, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, Moline. Promptly at 4 o'clock, at the beautiful strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Miss Lydia Shalberg of Moline, the bride and groom were met in the reception room by the bridesmaid, Miss Louise Forsberg, her sister, and the groom's best man, J. W. Carlstedt, who preceded them into the drawing room, where the ring ceremony, which was short but very impressive, was performed by the bride's father, Rev. N. J. Forsberg. During the ceremony Miss Shalberg played the sweet song, "I Love You, Truly." The bride was charmingly attired in a white peau de cygne gown with shadow lace in tunic effect, the skirt being made of tulle. She wore the tulle bridal veil worn by her mother 22 years ago, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore pink crepe de chine trimmed with chiffon ermine and she carried pink roses. The house was beautifully decorated in yellow and white with festoons of smilax and ferns and wedding bells, and candle light was used throughout the house. A four-course supper was served in the dining room, with covers laid for 12. The centerpiece was a bowl of daffodils, with individual baskets and place cards, carrying out the same flowers and colors. Miss Esther Miller of Lowell, Mass., a sister of the groom, was an out-of-town guest, Rev. and Mrs. Miller will reside at 1864 Twenty-third avenue, Moline, and will be at home after Feb. 1 to their friends.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of Upsala college and took his divinity course at Augustana seminary, graduating from that institution last spring. He has served Trinity Lutheran church, Moline, as pastor for a number of years and last spring accepted the call to become the regular pastor of that congregation. His bride is a talented violinist. She began her studies at South Bend, Ind., continuing them at Augustana conservatory, where she last year acted as instructor during the illness of the regular teacher. Until Christmas this year she was head of the violin department of William and Vashti college at Alledo, and for a number of years has been studying violin under Ludwig Becker of Chicago.

Upon her return from a shopping trip yesterday afternoon Mrs. J. Pepping of 3552 Fifteenth street, Moline, was surprised to find her home occupied by a company of 12 ladies who had come to help her celebrate her birthday anniversary. The dining room had been beautifully trimmed with ferns, carnations and pink roses and there a delightful luncheon was served. They spent the afternoon and evening with dancing and music. Miss Catherine Pepping and Mrs. Matthew Pepping giving selections. The honoree was given a number of very pretty gifts.

GRAHAM COOKIES; JELLY ROLL.

Alice Mitchell Kirk:

Dear Madame: Every day finds me anxiously awaiting for the many, many nourishing things that we find in your columns. Some days ago I tried your drop cakes made with graham flour, brown sugar, dates, etc., and lost the recipe before copying it in my own book. Will you kindly send it to me? I would also like to know how lemon pies can be made with top crust—using the lemons sliced. And want to know how to make a roll jelly cake. Sincerely yours,

MRS. W. A. W.

My personal contact every day with many housekeepers leads me to believe that, while women want to know the reasons why for nourishing foods which are intended to build rather than clog and destroy the body.

That is why our column is not one of just hit-and-miss recipes alone, but is planned along educational lines for the practical use of reasonable foods. Below will be found the requested recipes with the exception of the lemon pie, which will follow in another article:
